

Agency Coordinating Body for Afghan Relief and Development

Introduction

ACBAR provides the framework within which NGOs, UN agencies, the Afghan Government, and the donor community can exchange information, share expertise and establish guidelines for a more coordinated, efficient and effective use of resources for aid to the Afghan people. ACBAR's activities have focused heavily on; information to its members and the aid community. This includes coordination of activities at a national and regional levels, and advocacy on issues affecting the work of its members. The members of ACBAR are committed to working with each other, the government, donors, civil society organizations (CSOs) and communities to support Afghan – led humanitarian and development assistance.

The level of interaction between ACBAR and civil society organizations (CSOs) or networks varies according to the mandates of the CSOs organization, the situation, the capacity, and their willingness to cooperate with each other. ACBAR is in a great position to work on both national and international advocacy because of its rich mixed composition of ANGOs and INGOs. ACBAR acts as a platform for joined up advocacy on sector issues as well as on the operating environment for NGOs members. ACBAR also acts as an interface between NGOs members and UN/donors on operating environment issues: legislation, code of conduct, rules and regulations. In doing so, one of ACBAR's aims is that the knowledge of CSOs environment is better understood by all relevant stakeholders through networking, coordination, sharing of information, good practices. ACBAR has a fund to support the publications of CSOs who are ACBAR members/ Tawanmandi Partners.

Furthermore, ACBAR provides training, capacity building and material support to newly established Afghan NGOs members and Tawanmandi partners (about tax, labor and NGO law human resources, humanitarian principles). On an international level, ACBAR has partnerships with BAAG: British Agencies for Afghanistan Group (English/ Irish network for Afghanistan), ENNA: European NGOs Network for Afghanistan, US Interaction (Humanitarian Network), Japan Network, Health Care in Danger and John Hopkins University.
